Chrome Ore Daily review

BAIINFO-Chrome Ore Prices Keep Firm

On Feb. 9, 2023, chrome ore spot market prices runs at a high level, with traders taking wait-and-see stances. Price of 44% chrome concentrate in South Africa stays flat around RMB 60-61/MTU. Chrome ore inventories remained low. Spot resources are concentrated. Traders keep the prices firm amid rising costs. As for the international market, as chrome ore spot prices stay high at ports, downstream buyers make inquiries and purchase cautiously. Partial traders are not rushing into shipment so that they mainly control the shipment rate.

Forecast: Short-term chrome ore spot prices may stay firm. Currently, downstream ferrochrome producers replenish raw materials actively on rigid demand. In addition, supply side is insufficient. Hence, market players keep strong intention to keep the prices firm. Chrome ore spot prices at home and abroad mat not fluctuate largely tomorrow Price of 44% chrome concentrate in South Africa is around RMB 60-61/MTU. (USD1=RMB 6.7905; Source: BAIINFO)

Manganese Ore Daily Review

BAIINFO-Manganese Ore Market Stabilizes

On Feb. 9, 2023, manganese ore market remains steady, with downstream demand being released slowly. Producers are still waiting for the bidding prices of steel mills. Recently, manganese ore market is generally clouded with watching mood. Buyers purchase resources cautiously. International manganese ore prices rise, which is bullish to the market.

Forecast: Manganese ore producers are reluctant to sell resources at low prices, supported by rising international manganese ore prices. However, downstream silicomanganese futures market hovers at a low level. Manganese ore market may move sideways. (USD1=RMB 6.7905; Source: BAIINFO)
